The two men were tried in the criminal court for the same offense of which they were subsequently convicted by court-martial, and the chief justice held that they were thus placed twice in jeopardy of their liberty in violation of the constitution, and ordered their discharge. The case will go up on appeal.

We are painfully conscious of how little we know outside of the clothing business; but on that and all its requirements we claim to be "up." We know how dear to the feminine heart is the practice of shopping, and how much ladies would like to examine and price clothing for little Charlie or Frank before deciding where to purchase, yet they are often deterred from entering a clothing house through fear of being importuned to buy when they are not prepared.

Now all we require of our clerks is that they should wait on customers with the same courtesy and attention, whather they come to look or buy; to cheerfully furnish any desired information; to pleasantly show our goods and name our prices, and above and beyond all, never to urge people to buy against their inclination or judgment, Our instructions are faithfully carried out by them, because, in the first place, being gentlemen, this manner of doing business exactly suits their views; and again, they are not called upon by us to "please explain" whenever they fail to sell a visitor. To ladies who have boys to care for we would say our spring stock of Boys and Children's Clothing is now complete, our styles are varied, our variety is almost endless, and our prices are really low, to prove which we respectfully invite you to honor us with a visit of inspection. We think we can agreeably surprise you. At all events we shall do our best toward making your visit a pleasant one.

A WORK OF HISTORICAL IMPORTANCE THE PEACE OF UTRECHT, AND THE PRINCIPAL EVENTS OF THE WAR OF THE "SPANISH SUCCESSION," BY JAMES W. GERARD

OF THE "SPANISH SUCCESSION."

BY JAMES W. GERARD

5v. cloth extra, $1.

"The author has made a study of the nomentous events leading up to that famous compact, and the result is a narrative quite as romantic as a tale of fection, and in every way as citertaining."—Chicago Berold.

"Mr. Gerard has opened up a mine of historical wealth, which will be a revelation to many who have been accustomed to repard themselves as thoroughly acquainted with the subject."—Detroil Free Press.

"Mr. Gerard has made a careful study of that momentous period which closed with the reign of Louis XIV and Queen Anne, of which the Peace of Utrecht was the political culmination; and he has presented the results of his valuable researches in such a forcible and attractive style that readers of every class will become familiar with the subject."—Mogaziae of American Bistory.

"The author has given in this work an exceedingly valuable and impartial contribution to our historical literature, and one that can be read with pleasure and profit, not only by the student of history and international law, but by the general reader."—New York Bordd.

"Taking up one of the most difficult periods of history, Mr. Gerard has brought clearly before the student all the various phases of the Spanish succession. One can hardly help moralizing on the action of the statesmen and soldiers of those eventful times; and Mr. Gerard's speculations on the ruling motives of these men are not among the least interesting portions of this history.
